The first preliminary to the McGovernWhite fight was between young Malone and Samme Keefe of Chicago, at 18 pounds.
The fight was stopped in the third round,
Keefe being practically out.

Kid Garfield was given the decision on points over Henry Lumbard at the end of six rounds.

Kid Schultz was given the decision over Joe Sheriock at the end of the sixth round. The men fought at 122 pounds, larney Comors of Chicago defeated Billy Elmer, the actor, of San Francisco, in the third round, the fight being stopped by Referee Siler, Elmer was knocked down clean in the first round, again in the stoom, but knocked comors against the ropes immediately after regaining his feet.

Elmer was grougy when he went to his corner in the second, and was weak when he came up for the third, Comors battered him badly, and when the fight was stopped bimer was covered with blood. He made a remarkably game fight and resisted florce-ly when his seconds tried to take him to his corner. The round had gone one minute and ten second, when Conner was given the decision. The men fought at 150 pounds. Jack Moffatt of Chicago outpointed Jim Adams of Omaha in six rather slow rounds. This was Moffatt's first appearance since he broke his left arm in a light in New York several months ago, but in spite of that handicap the fight was his from the first. Moffatt injured his arm in the final round, but not seriously.

MISCELIANEOUS.

The following communication from the president of the Merchants Exchange was read and filed:

St. Louis, Mo., April 13th, 1990.

Mr. Charles R. Graves, Seretary City Council:

Dear Sir—I beg to acknowledge receipt of your favor of March 28th, covering a resolution adopted by the Council at its meeting March 28th, requesting the Merchants Exchange "To appoint a committee for the purpose of making an examination of the financial condition of the causes which have led to the lack of finds for necessary expenses, and to suggest such remedy for existing conditions as they may see fit to make."

The responsibility of investigating the citys finances and of making a report to the public is a subject requiring the most careful conscientation. I have conferred with the Board of Directors of the Exchange, and with a number of gentlemen well informed as to manicipal affairs, and the consensus of opinion, in which I coincide, is that the work of such a committee would not be of any practical benefit either to the municipal government or to the citizens at large. Such a committee would have no power to summon witnesses, to send for persons of papers or to provide for necessary expenses in making a report to the citizens at large. Such a committee would have no power to summon witnesses, to send for persons or papers or to provide for necessary expenses in making a report t would have no power to summon witnesses, to send for persons of papers or to provide for necessary expenses in making a thorough examination of the city's financial affairs. A general statement of receipts and disbursements taken from the published reports of the city officials would be of no practical value, and it would be necessary to go behind these official reports and examine into the detail management of each department.

and examine into the detail management of each department.

While, in common with the business men of the city, the members of the Merchants' Exchange feel a deep anxiety as to the financial condition of the city and would be glad to aid its officials in solving this yexed problem; nevertheless, they make to the opinion that such a committee as is suggested in the resolution of the Council would be unable to secure the information necessary to a complete investigation and report.

I am of the opinion that no practical results could be obtained unless a commission be created by virtue of an ordinance passed by both branches of the Municipal Assembly and approved by the Mayor giving power to summon witnesses, to compel attendance and provide for the necessary circumstance and provide for the necessary circumstance. leaf expenses of such commission.

I, therefore, must decline to appoint a committee as requested, unless authority is given by an ordinance such as suggested. This communication is sent with the approval and by direction of the Board of Directors of the Exchange.
